New! Managing Your Fear

Are you afraid of the unknown? Does the fear of failure send you running for the hills? Understanding anxiety, as well as how to control its physical manifestations, will help make you a more confident public speaker.

New! Keeping the Audience Engaged

Keeping an audience interested is crucial to a successful speech. This video addresses the finer points of vocal variety, speech structure, the benefits of practice and the rewards of authenticity.

Lighten Up Your Speech

by Judy Carter

Getting laughs as a speaker is a lot easier than doing stand-up. Speakers aren't expected to get laughs every 10 seconds, so when you do deliver a funny line, it's a happy surprise.

MASTERING STORYTELLING

Know the three I's: invitation, imagination and impact.

You're on the road to becoming your company's Chief Storyteller. Let's begin with some good news: You're already better than you might think. You tell stories every day. Here, we'll explore three capabilities that will take you well on your way to becoming a professional storyteller. Remember the "three R's" of your early education: reading, writing and 'rithmetic? Now consider the "three I's" of storytelling: invitation, imagination and impact. Here's how you can master them:

1 Invitation. Remember Steve Jobs' famous invitation to Pepsi's then-CEO John Sculley when he lured him to Apple by asking, "Do you want to spend the rest of your life selling sugared water, or do you want a chance to change the world?" Engage your listeners by stimulating their curiosity and asking them to share in something exciting with you.

2 Imagination. Enlivening people's imaginations is easy. What happens before you visit the doctor? Or when you're waiting for the board's reaction to your latest strategic plan? Your imagination puts on quite a show. Who needs PowerPoint or technological wizardry?

In 1961, U.S. President John F. Kennedy recognized the need for a new narrative to galvanize the space race. Before a joint session of the U.S. Congress, he boldly announced that by the end of the decade the country would be dedicated to "landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to Earth." Despite widespread doubts, and the fact that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) had not yet even sent a man into orbit around the Earth, he electrified the collective imagination of the country.

Imagination is the direct access point to our creativity. Simply say "Imagine this ..." and people's creative juices start flowing. They're transported to a different and vivid new reality without leaving their seats.

3 Impact. We crave impact. We want to be seen and know that what we do has meaning. In baseball terms, it's called "taking the ball to the bat." As a storyteller, that means watching your audience closely to see how your content is affecting them.

In 1995, South African President Nelson Mandela knew he had to shore up his government's tenuous hold on post-

Results of the February 2013 Board of Directors Meeting

The Toastmasters International Board of Directors met in Irvine, California, February 21-23, 2013, with International President, John Lau, DTM, presiding. The Board covered a range of strategic topics focused on enhancing the member experience and improving club consistency around the world. It addressed strategies relating to current and future developing markets, updated the Club Constitution and Bylaws to meet current practices and monitored the progress of the 2010 Strategic Plan objectives as well as districts' progress toward its goals in the new District Recognition Program.

To learn more about the results of the Board meeting, read the Executive Director's mid-year report or to view the minutes of the Advisory Council of Past Presidents meeting held on August 16, 2012, please click on the links below:

Where Leaders are made

What can we do to share ~~

1. Encourage guests join us in short time.
2. Prevent new member from leaving.
3. Encourage members go forward for
ACB, ACS, ACG...
4. Motivate members to stay & progress in club.

Don't Come away empty-handed !
